NEW CITY BUILDING PLANS

Office Arrangements Which Await the City Council's Action

The plans for the new city hall, which were put on exhibition in the council chamber this morning, have been viewed by several citizens today and everyone appears to be pleased with the outline as it has been presented by the architects.

However, these plans are subject to changes or may as a whole be approved or disapproved by the council. The mayor and committee who are engaged in handling the matter of the municipal building are looking ahead for the future and have arranged for certain rooms and quarters in the plans that, while such are not absolutely necessary at the present time will be certainly needed in time to come.

Beginning at the basement this floor will be given mostly to cell room of the police department, including a woman's retiring, padded cells, boiler room, coal room, janitor's quarters. Putting the cell room below is certainly one improvement that has long been needed, especially when prisoners are of a very noisy nature.

On the street floor there will be located the mayor's office, city clerk, board of public works, collector, water department. In the rear the chief of police will have an office; there will also be women's cells, matron's room and a booking room for prisoners.

Going up stairs we find the council chamber, police court room, quarters for the city auditor, clerk of court, attorneys and judge.

Up the next flight will be found the overseer of poor, board of engineers, board of health, registrars of voters and city engineer.

The plans present a front and side view of the structure with a tower and illuminated clock. The tower and clock are not at present necessary and probably will be cut from whatever plan is accepted. The whole thing is strictly up to date and it now depends just how much of it the city will get with the money which it can expend on the building.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Young Couple Quietly Wedded This Afternoon at Universalist Parsonage

The wedding of two popular young people, John Goodrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Goodrich, and Miss Grace Pearl Raitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Raitt of Deer street, occurred this afternoon at two o'clock at the parsonage of the Universalist church and was performed by Rev. George E. Leighton. Both bride and groom are well liked by a host of friends and acquaintances who wish them much happiness and joy in their new life.

FORMER RESIDENT AT REST

Funeral of Samuel H. Chauncey, One Time Employed at Navy Yard, at Springfield

Mayor Adams returned from Springfield, Mass., Wednesday evening, having been called there to attend the funeral of his brother, Samuel H. Chauncey, who died suddenly in that city last Sunday.

Mr. Chauncey was well known in this city and at Kittery, Maine, where he was born. He learned the carpenter's trade at the Portsmouth navy yard and was employed there for several years after finishing his apprenticeship. For eighteen years he worked for Sands, Paige & Fernald at Boston and for eight years has been in the employ of A. C. Hunt & Co., at Springfield, Mass.

He was a person of excellent character and of pleasing disposition. Everybody liked Sam as he was familiarly called.

He leaves a widow and four children, besides a large circle of friends to mourn his loss.

SHOT HIS WIFE

Waverille, Me., June 17.—An armed posse is today searching the woods north of this town for George Bartlett Lashus, who, following an altercation with his eighteen year old wife Rosanilla, on Redding street, shot and mortally wounded her.

Scores of men, women and children who were at a circus near the scene of the shooting last night, were thrown into a panic. Many dashed from the big tent and joined in the chase after Lashus, who fled after firing a second shot at his wife.

The shooting took place within 500 feet of the Lashus home. Lashus fled to his house, pursued by the enraged mob.

Although the posse searched the woods all night they were unable to capture Lashus. It is believed that he is hiding in the woods north of the town.

Lashus, who is 30 years of age has had a number of quarrels with his wife, many of them, it is said, being over money matters. It is alleged by the police that he often threatened to shoot her.

The Sloop Yacht Unia Put Into Port in Distress

Kittery, Me., June 17.

That Traip Academy is one of the town's greatest institutions was most emphatically demonstrated Wednesday evening when the record breaking crowd of the season turned out to see the annual junior exhibition in Academy hall. The seating capacity of the room accounted for hardly more than half the audience, but those standing were too much absorbed in the performance to mind the discomfort. The participants without exception much well merited applause, and recitations by Misses Fannie A. Emery, Ruth M. Baker and Bernice E. Glidden came in for a goodly share of this. In the court scene from the "Merchant of Venice" the principal roles were admirably carried out, those of Ruth M. Baker in the character of Gratiano, Alice L. Coes as Portia, Orman R. Paul as the Duke, Leon P. Spinney as Shylock, Ernest C. Baker as Bassanio, Herbert E. Tobey as Antonio and Bernice E. Glidden as Nerissa, being enthusiastically received. Three beautiful selections by Whitman's full orchestra were interspersed through the programme. The stage was prettily decorated with palms and ferns while over it hung the class motto, "Esse Quam Videri." "To be rather than to seem." The officers of the class of 1910 are as follows: President, Alice L. Coes; vice president, Orman R. Paul; secretary, Bertha E. Seaward; treasurer, Leon P. Spinney. The other members of the class are Ruth M. Baker, Ernest C. Baker, Marion Cutts, Fannie A. Emery, Bernice E. Glidden, Louise M. Lewis, Evelyn E. Raynes, Herbert E. Tobey, Florence G. Webber and Eva Lambert. Miss Marion Cutts was unable to take part in the exercises because of illness, but her friends were glad to see her present.

The sloop yacht Lillie, Capt. Hill, has been put in commission and has taken up her usual summer moorings at Locke's Cove.

Children will not be admitted to graduation exercises at Traip Academy on Friday afternoon, unless accompanied by adult.

Scott Gordon and family of New Bedford, Mass., have arrived at their cottage at the Intervale.

Painters have finished work on the house of Mrs. Octavius B. Libby.

Daniel O. Seaward is moving a building owned by Scott Gordon.

Melvin Spinney's schooner Henrietta is on the beach in the back channel for cleaning and painting.

Atlantic Shore line conductors are already in fear of becoming stoop shouldered through carrying around pennies. One unfortunate collector of fares had nearly a thousand on his person at one time Wednesday, while this is probably not a circumstance to

THIRTY-TWO YOUNG FOLKS GRADUATE

PORTSMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL, CLASS OF 1910

From The Portsmouth High School This Afternoon

A class of thirty-two bright young people is holding Portsmouth High school graduation exercises in Music Hall as we go to press this afternoon, the exercises beginning at three o'clock.

The Decorations

Music Hall has been a busy place since early morning when the junior class took possession for the purpose of decorating for the afternoon exercises.

A beautiful color scheme of gold and black had been worked out. A mass of ferns in front of the footlights with yellow buttercups rising above them is the keynote to the whole which in evergreen and flowers surrounds the stage and proscenium.

Above the stage center is suspended a curved bar, bearing the motto "Nunc aut Nunquam" which being interpreted, is "Now or Never." From that swings an ornamental diamond-shaped board, bearing a reproduction of this year's class pin with its lettering "P. H. S. '09."

The front of the stage is reserved for the graduating class and the school officials, while raised tiers at the back afford room for the undergraduate classes.

The Class Personnel

The members of the graduating class are:

Latin course—Philip Joseph Griffin, Barbara Gertrude Boynton, Mildred Alice Burke, Elizabeth Beth, Margaret Rand, Martha Demaris Ring, Leah Annie Walsh, Gertrude Frances Boyer, Edna Beatrice Willey.

Latin Scientific course—Philip Owen Badger, William Henry Langdon Brackett, Edwin Dean Nelson, Gay Earle Smart, Beatrice Stewart Barton, Ora Eloise Northwick, Irene Margaret Boyle, Sarah Gertrude Gorham, Anna Frances Phelan, Miriam Frances Pollard.

General course—Ralph Wesley Badger, Leon Arthur Robinson, Ralph Thompson Wood, Gertrude Marie Belmont, Beatrice Neads Billmuck, Mary Elizabeth Mercer, Florence Christine O'Keefe.

Commercial course—Samuel Johnson Fletcher, Raymond Jackson Holt, John Philip Palmer, Martelle Esther Pollmer, Charlotte Bernice Remick, Esther Slosberg.

The Class Gift

The address of presentation of the class gift by Philip Owen Badger is as follows:

Mr. Chairman:

In accordance with the splendid custom which for a period of nineteen years has been followed in an uninterrupted course by the graduating classes of this High School, the class of nineteen hundred and nine on this, its graduation, presents to the school of which for four years it has been a part, a gift, which in our estimation, is the best possible choice.

This gift, as you may see Mr. Chairman, is composed of books, not comprising a set of one author's works, but rather the cream of many men's production. We have selected, at the advice of the teachers of the different departments, a number of books which will be useful to students who are pursuing their general course. By this means, Mr. Chairman, not only are the English and History courses favored, but the Commercial and Scientific branches secure a number of books which will undoubtedly be of great help to them.

It would be useless for me to attempt to give the names of the volumes, for, inasmuch as they are 83 in number, such a task would be nerve-racking, and to say the least, tedious. Thus I hope that my previous statement regarding the kind of field which these volumes cover will be sufficient to give you an idea of their nature and contents.

In past years it has usually been the custom to make the class gift one of statuary or pictures. It is far from our intention in breaking away from this rule, to imply the meaning that these constitute a poor choice for they form an immense source of good, inasmuch as they beautify our splendid school building and train our eyes to appreciate the works of the masters. But we do most firmly believe that our choice is one which will be of especially great interest and usefulness to those who follow on behind us, and we are truly interested in the welfare of the succeeding classes.

Naturally, in the developments arising from our progress through the three lower classes to the senior ranks, we have formed a warm attachment for P. H. S. and many are the happy days and weeks which its name reveals to our memory. We have performed no scholastic marvels nor have we attained remarkable achievements on the athletic field, but we have always maintained a fine spirit of loyalty and patriotism toward our school. But now as we assemble for the last time, a small, but patriotic band, as an undergraduate body of this school we, realize more fully than ever what the last four years have meant to us and I believe I may truly say that there is not one boy or girl among my classmates but that feels an acute pang of regret at leaving the school and the teachers, who for four years have taught and drilled us. Thus Mr. Chairman, what is more fitting than that we should endeavor to repay at least a small portion of our indebtedness? And what is more practical than our selection of books? For we believe that literature forms the keystone of our marvelous civilization of today. Unwritten theories and speculations may flourish for a short period, but the concentrated essence of pure civilization and advancement, of practical thought and practical theory, has been handed down to us through the long years in the writings and biographies of the master minds of the ages.

Books are brain food as some one has said, brain food nourishes the intellectual state of man, and as the intellect progresses so the world marches on. Books are easier of access at the present time than any other kind of food. The best books are the easiest to get and upon the whole they have the widest circulation, this is notably true of the English Bible, the most beautiful, powerful and precious of all books, which is still the most popular book in the world.

Everyone knows what books of themselves are, but of what are they composed? What is the vital strength and power? Lastly, what does this word, literature, mean? Van Dyke has said, "It is the ark upon the flood; it is the light upon the candlestick; it is the flower among the leaves; the consummation of the plant's vitality; the crown of its beauty; the treasure house of its seeds." And how truly has this master's voice spoken. Literature is composed of the inner meanings of nature and life "in language of distinction and charm," flavored sweet or piquant by the author's personality.

We believe that education should extend throughout life, that education should not end with our school days, that as long as we live the mind should not be restricted to our daily toil, to the pursuit of money, but that some time should be devoted to the acquisition of knowledge and the improvement of the mind. Books form this necessary stimulus. What delightful thoughts issue out of the very thought of books! Shakespeare, with no less truth than beauty, has said: "All places that the eye of Heaven visits are to the wise men ports and happy havens."

THIRTY-TWO YOUNG FOLKS GRADUATE

Let us have the best of books and let us read them thoughtfully and understandingly and as Ruskin would have us do, enter into the very heart and soul of the author. For to read and yet so to read that we see nothing but a corner of literature is to stunt our imagination, to deepen our belief that the United States form the hub of the universe, and our present age is the only one worth notice.

Be it poetry, history, science, or philosophy, our first duty is to aim at knowing something at least of the best at getting some definite idea of the mighty realm upon whose end we are perched.

Let us shape our ideals of life and the universe, of passion and of zeal like to the models of the mighty masters of the ages. Van Dyke has said "Carlyle's father was a stone mason a faithful worker, whose walls stood true and firm. Carlyle's prayer was 'Let me write my books as he built his houses.'"

We cannot all be Carlyles, we cannot all be masters of the pen or the brush, or the chisel. But we can mold our lives after the splendid ideals presented to us through the medium of books.

And thus, Mr. Chairman, in harmony with these ideas and hopes, I present to you, in behalf of the class of nineteen hundred and nine, these books.

The Class Song
The class song, written by Martha Dawaric Ring, and with music by Leon Arthur Robinson, is as follows:

The time has come to bid a fond farewell
To all the care free days of childhood's life,
For now our duty's urgent voice is sweet
To call us to our own unending strife.

The world, henceforth, a different aspect turns
As we amid its pathways make our way,
And firm determination in us burns
That from our duty's call we shall not stray.

So let us then, with sincere, heartfelt thanks
To those who many years our minds have taught,
Press on to join the ever swelling ranks
To gain the distant prize we long have sought.

Class Will of 1909

We, the class of 1909, of Portsmouth High School, in the county of Rockingham, and state of New Hampshire, being of sound and disposing mind and body do make, publish and declare this our last will and testament, hereby revoking all wills by us at any time heretofore made.

After the payment of our just debts and graduating expenses we do bequeath:

Item 1. We give, devise and bequeath the room on the first floor, known as room four, to the Junior class, charging them to be careful of the scratches on the desks as they have been achieved through much toil and labor.

How to Stop Baldness

Woods Hutchinson, M. D., widely known as a writer of authority, says in the Cosmopolitan Magazine for February, 1909: "The main hope of stopping the advance of baldness lies in the direction of improving the general health and vigor, while at the same time keeping the scalp and the hair in a clean, antiseptic, well-ventilated condition. Avoid using too strong soaps, strong alkalis, such as ammonia and soda, and too hot water, as all of these take out too much of the natural lubricant, or oil, of the hair, and leave it dry and harsh." Birt's Head Wash is recommended as a perfectly safe preparation for cleansing the hair and scalp. It is a mild, antiseptic preparation, made of Refined Soap, Cochin Cocconut Oil, Glycerin, White of Eggs and Salicylic

Acid. This is a formula that comes well within Dr. Hutchinson's recommendation, as it contains no free alkali or ammonia and it puts the scalp and hair in a vigorous, healthful condition. After using Birt's Head Wash, your hair will possess a lustre and sheen that no other remedy can bestow, while your scalp will be soft, white and clean. Remember always that cleanliness comes first of all in stopping falling hair, curing dandruff and itching scalp, and that for all these troubles Birt's Head Wash is the best thing you can buy, for you know exactly what it is made of. There are so many fakes and frauds for the hair on the market that you ought to be glad to get something that you can depend upon as being safe to use. Price 50c a jar.

Item 2. Mr. Palmer leaves nothing but the request that his seat in room four be left vacant for a certain young lady of the class of 1911.

Item 3. Miss Hett leaves the corner seat near the door to Miss Rand feeling that she will need it to carry on her conversations.

Item 4. Miss Betton wills her desk in room four to Mr. Dennett, hoping that his accumulation of waste paper may rival hers.

Item 5. Mr. Brackett bequeaths his position of collector of class dues to Mr. Knox, hoping 1910 may not be so peculiarly embarrassed as 1909 seemed to be.

Item 6. Miss Boyle wills the love of studying at recess time to Misses Varrell and Akerley, warning them that an ounce of prevention against failing is worth more than a pound of making up on Tuesday afternoons.

Item 7. Mr. R. Badger bequeaths his love of tripping the "light fantastic" to Mr. Marston.

Item 8. Miss Slosberg wills her typewriter to Miss Weinstein.

Item 9. Mr. Griffin leaves his volume of Bacon's essays to Messrs. Leighton and Gardner.

Item 10. Miss Northwick gives the pleasure of staying after school to Mr. Waterhouse, telling him that to whisper in a back seat in room four requires caution.

Item 11. Mr. Smart bequeaths his collection of fancy hose and neckties to Mr. Davis.

Item 12. Miss Walsh wills her French medal to Miss Adams, provided Miss Adams doesn't get one of her own.

Item 13. Mr. Fletcher gives the pleasure of coming in late to Mr. McBride knowing that he will need the extra time to pack his grip.

Item 14. Miss Wiley leaves her collection of combs to Miss M. Williams adding that variety is the acme of perfection in the arrangement of the hair.

Item 15. Mr. Nelson wills his extreme devotion to foreign languages to Messrs. Wiggin and Gray, knowing that they will enjoy competition in mastering those languages.

Item 16. Miss Pollmer bequeaths her musical talent to Mr. Pattee.

Item 17. Knowing Mr. Yeaton's aversion to studying, Mr. Hoyt gives him his superabundant account of that valuable thirst for knowledge assuring him that he will need it to get a satisfactory senior report card.

Item 18. Miss Bryer wills her sad disposition to Misses Reed and Hatch.

Item 19. Miss Belmont gives her love of American History to Misses Winn and Hogan.

Item 20. Miss Polard wills the roving feeling which generally overtakes her during the fifth period to Misses Day and Danton.

Item 21. Miss O'Keefe gives her dream of graduating in a cap and gown to Miss Connors.

Item 22. Mr. P. Badger gives his wonderful literary talent to Misses Jenkins and Hayes feeling that they will need it in writing senior novels.

Item 23. Miss Burke bequeaths her German books to Miss Garrett hoping that she will study them at least two hours daily.

Item 24. Mr. Robinson gives his position as class musician to Mr. Littlefield.

Item 25. Miss King leaves her reference books for the study of English literature to Misses Hutchinson and Kehoe hoping that their class will appreciate the information which they will be able to give them.

Item 26. Misses Mercer and Remick leave their record of good behaviour to Messrs. Hodgdon and Mercer.

Item 27. Mr. Wood gives his camera to Messrs. Bennett and Hill hoping they may take good snapshots of the class of 1910 when they go on their Washington trip.

Item 28. Miss Billbruck leaves the most orderly desk in room five to Mr. Leavitt.

Item 29. Miss Rand feels that she would like to carry away nothing but live impressions of High School life so she leaves everything else to Miss Brewster.

Item 30. Miss Phelan wills her physiography note book to Misses Barsantee and Muchmore.

Item 31. Miss Boynton bequeaths the corner of room five dressing room to Mr. McDonald.

Item 32. The boys of 1909 leave the pleasure of putting up the flag to the boys of 1910.

Lastly we leave the great Senior pride to the Junior Class.

We name, constitute and appoint as executor of this, our last will and testament, John Phillips Palmer, president of this class, directing him to see that its terms are carried out, and also directing him to pay all our just debts and graduating expenses.

In witness whereof we, he class of 1909 of Portsmouth High School, have caused this will to be signed by John Philip Palmer, thereunto duly authorized, this seventeenth day of June, 1909.

John Philip Palmer
Written by Gertrude Lothrop.

Commencement Day Notes

The class will have a reception and dance at Freeman's hall this evening, to which a large number of invitations have been accepted. The reception committee consists of Principal J. W. Hobbs, Percy Brigham, Miss Laura Matthews and Miss Isabel Davidson from the school faculty, and the class officers: Mr. Palmer, president; Miss Burke, vice president; Mr. Brackett, treasurer, and Miss Boyle, secretary.

Principal J. Wilson Hobbs will spend the summer at his home in Kittery. Mr. Hobbs and Superintendent Silver will go to Hanover next week to attend their decennial class reunion of Dartmouth college. Guy E. Corey, Esq., of this city, another member of that class, will go with them.

Among the commencement day announcements is one that Miss Dorothy Philbrick, a post graduate student, has not been tardy at school in twelve years.

FIREWORKS FIRE

Boston, June 17.—Thrilling rescues of several women and children from a fire that followed an explosion of fireworks in a Charlestown store early today, were made by Police Sergeant Sullivan of the Hanover street station and Patrolmen Fitzgerald and Fitzpatrick of the City Square station. The three policemen risked their lives in carrying people to safety.

The fire occurred in the store kept by William Welsh at No. 61 Bunker Hill street. In a moment after the fireworks in the window burst forth in a great sheet of flame the entire building, which was three stories high was burning like a great pile of kindling wood.

Women and children were asleep on every floor.

HAMPTON

The graduating exercises of the Hampton academy were held on Wednesday evening.

The class of two graduates held interesting exercises, and it was as graded by lower class members. The graduates were Carrie Ruth Leavitt and William Henry Sautborn.

The Rye Rural Free Delivery has been extended to take in the whole of the North Rye Beach to the city road.

Robson & Wilson Musical Act at Music Hall.

NAVAL NOTES

Specifications have been issued to prospective bidders for the two 26,000 ton battleships, Arkansas and Wyoming.

The American army transport Kilpatrick which has arrived at Aden, from Manila, five days late, reports an exceedingly rough passage and a strong monsoon wind from Colombo.

On some days the Kilpatrick made only four knots. The transport has on board seven hundred men of the Tenth Regiment of cavalry. Some cases of pneumonia occurred among the troops during the voyage, but the men are now convalescent and there were no casualties.

The United States torpedo boat destroyer Roswell H. Lamson was not launched yesterday from the ward of the Cramp Shipbuilding Company in Philadelphia, as was scheduled, but it was named by Mrs. Henry S. Grove wife of the president of the shipbuilding corporation. The boat stuck on the ways after sliding half way into the water.

Admiral Perez Gaceta, of the Chilean navy, who with three other Chilean naval officers is on a long tour, today will be presented to President Taft. Later the party will visit the gun factory at the Washington navy yard, the United States Naval academy at Annapolis and the navy yards at Norfolk, New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

A committee has been formed to collect for the raising of the Russian submarine boat Kambala, which was sunk in collision with the battleship Rotislav, and in which the bodies of the crew are still imprisoned.

STIRRED UP PATRIOTISM

Effect of Trip of the Mississippi in Southern Waters

Washington, June 17.—Captain J. C. Fremont of the battleship Mississippi, which has returned to Philadelphia from her trip up the Mississippi river as far as Natchez, in his report to the navy department declares one of the most important results of the cruise, he considers, was the evident effect on the sentiment of the people toward the government. The vessel was an evidence of its power, and the wish to please them seemed to have awakened an enthusiasm and patriotism which was undoubtedly there, but dormant, and this sentiment found expression in the receptions and ovations which were tendered the ship continually over a period of three weeks with unabated fervor, reaching its fitting climax at Natchez, where it was marked by the return of the battle flag captured from the U. S. S. Petrel.

This latter episode was mostly inspired by the fact that Grand Army men had returned their captured flags to the Confederate organizations to which they belonged. Captain Fremont says he believes the effect of the trip to the navy will be one of the great and lasting benefits in the minds of all the southern section of the country.

Captain Fremont attributes the success of the cruise, in which there were so many chances of accident and which was accomplished on schedule time, and with apparent ease, to have been largely due to the excellent manner in which the motive and steering mechanism stood up under the unusual strain, and to the willing and hearty assistance that was given him, not only by the personnel of the ship, but by every official, especially those of the engineer corps.

Maine Officials Permit to Atlantic Shore Line Railway

Augusta, Me., June 17.—Announcement is made at the office of the state board of railroad commissioners that a certificate has been issued to the Knickerbocker Trust company of New York city, trustee, in response to a petition from the Atlantic Shore line railway asking that the commissioners make such an investigation of the accounts and vouchers relative to certain improvements and additions made on the petitioner's line of railroad as would satisfy the commissioners as to the actual cost of the same and issue their certificate as provided in a certain trust deed or refunding mortgage.

In their certificate, the commissioners say:

"The railroad commissioners of the state of Maine hereby certify that they have examined a certain trust deed or refunding mortgage of the Atlantic Shore line railway, dated April 2, 1908, securing an issue of $3,000,000 four per cent bonds of said railway and especially Article I, Section L, subdivision (c) of said mortgage.

"That pursuant to said subdivision (c) of said mortgage and of the petition of said railway dated May 3, 1909, and after an examination we hereby certify that said railway has actually expended or contracted to expend since April 2, 1906, to November 30, 1908, the sum of $213,407.15 in addition to, extending or permanently improving its railway system, and in purchasing new and additional equipment therefor.

"That under the provisions of the bond the said railway is entitled to receive from said trustee bonds to the amount of $160,000 for said expenditures as aforesaid, which sum does not exceed 75 per cent of the sums so expended.

"That on January 23, 1908, the Knickerbocker Trust company of New York city, trustee under the trust deed above referred to, issued the sum of $100,000 in bonds under the provisions of said mortgage, and that said railway company is now entitled to receive from said trustee additional bonds to the amount of $60,000, which amount of bonds said railway desires said trustee to be authorized and requested to certify and deliver as provided in said mortgage; and we hereby certify that said railway has actually expended or contracted to spend the sums above named, and are entitled to have certified and issued to them the $60,000 in bonds as aforesaid."

THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE YACHT CLUB DECIDED

Pool Game Played Last evening with a Large Audience

For a long time there has been a serious difference of opinion among the members of the Portsmouth Yacht Club as to who were the best pool players, and as a result a match between the acknowledged leaders of the game for the championship.

It was for a series of three games and the players were Henry Childs of Dorchester, a non resident member who is a well known player in Boston, and George Macaulay of this city as one of the team and Chief Carpenter Johnson of the Wisconsin and George W. Stillson of this city. The match was won by the last named team, due to the exceptional fine work of Stillson, whose skill with a cue was a revelation even to his most ardent supporters. Several times from difficult breaks he runs the entire fifteen balls and with the assistance from Mr. Johnson played tag with the other team. Mr. Stillson's friends are considering having a medal struck off in his honor.

Miss Staff Marries Mr. Vaughan

Reception of the High School Seimors

Exeter, June 17.

The marriage ceremony of Arthur W. Vaughan and Hedwig Eleanor Staff of Cambridge, Mass., was performed on Wednesday evening by Rev. Edward Green, pastor of the Unitarian church. Mr. Vaughan has long been employed as mail messenger, and is prominent in many circles. The ceremony was performed in the presence of his immediate friends. He was remembered with gifts from the postoffice clerks. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan will make their future residence on the Brentwood road.

Maurice J. Dwyer, who on April 1 of this year, assumed the duties as a member of the Capitol police force at Washington, D. C., arrived at his home in town on Wednesday, where he will spend a vacation of fifty days, which is allotted to each member. Mr. Dwyer has served efficiently during his connection there, and has had several honors fall to him.

Miss Eleanor Collins has arrived at her home on High street from Tufts college for the summer vacation.

Dr. P. A. Charles of North Andover, Mass., a former resident, has returned from a visit with friends here.

Dr. A. D. Hooper has returned from a vacation trip spent at Fairfield, Me., and vicinity. The ceremony of his marriage was performed during his absence from here. Dr. and Mrs. Hooper are to make their future residence in town.

Fred Hartz has recovered from an illness which has confined him for the past two weeks.

The reception of the senior class of the high school will be held on Wednesday evening at the town hall, although there are to be no graduating exercises, owing to the instituting of the four years' course, this year, and is the first class under the four years' course to graduate.

The members of Bunker Hill council, Junior O. U. A. M., conducted a very successful lawn party at Stratford Hill park on Wednesday evening. The attendance was large, including many from this town. Music was furnished by the drum corps and ice cream was served at the park.

It is probable that a tennis match between the academy tennis team and St. Paul's school of Concord will be held next week either Tuesday or Wednesday. The match will be played on the Plympton field. It will be the first time that the two schools have ever met in athletics.

what will be experienced upon days of very heavy travel.

One of the Eastern Dredging company's scows at the yard was towed to Boston on Wednesday by the tug Marguerite.

George O. Athorne was the purchaser of Frank Tobey's house at Kittery Point as well as the owner of the farm which Mr. Tobey has purchased in Elliot.

Atlantic Shore line ticket books under the old tariff were on sale until 2:30 Wednesday morning, and when at the last minute it became definitely known that they would be valued until used, the demand began to exceed the supply with astonishing suddenness. Many shrewd persons purchased workmen's books by wholesale, in numbers regulated by the size of their pocketbooks. The fortunate possessors of a pile of ticket books, such as some acquired need not worry about the six cent fare yet awhile.

Nelson Brigham of Medford, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Dennett of Echo street.

Dr. James R. May of Portsmouth was a visitor in town Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Drake of Belmont, Mass., well known here, are visiting in Elliot.

Mrs. Daniel Onstott of Echo street sailed from Boston Tuesday evening on the Cunarder Saxonia for Liverpool, on a business trip to England. M. M. Buell, lately of the gunboat Eagle, is visiting his wife here.

Elmer O. Pray, who graduated from the University of Maine at Orono, this month, has arrived to pass the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac H. M. Pray of Rogers road.

Miss Miriam Schurman of Portsmouth was a visitor in town Wednesday.

Having been delayed several days,

Jacob Wendell, Jr., and family of New York, who were expected Friday last, arrived today for the summer at their cottage at the Intervale.

Kittery Point

Kittery Point correspondent's telephone 297-5.

After a vacation of two weeks, declared because of a shortage of funds, the ripsy moth force resumed operations Wednesday.

Perhaps a Black Hand outrage miscarried, or possibly there was an attempt at a premature Fourth of July celebration, but at any rate one whole stick of dynamite was found in the rear of Frisbee Brothers' old store Wednesday afternoon. It is more than likely that it came from Fort McClary, where in a vacant building several hundred pounds of this explosive have been stored.

Tug M. Mitchell Davis went to Kennebunkport Wednesday and towed the three master Thomas B. Garland, Capt. Ellery O. Garland, to sea. The schooner sailed for the Kennebec to load ice for New York.

There arrived Wednesday for shelter, schooners Hume, Nash, Rockland for Boston with lime, and Eleanor Boynton, Coffin, M. Desert for Boston, with gravel.

Sloop J. F. McMorro, Capt. Simon McLeod, has arrived at Portsmouth with a cargo of lobster bait for Elvin Newton and company.

Another five master is on the way here, the Governor Ames from Newport News. Two others are en route and two more in port. Another record bids fair to be broken.

The small sloop yacht Unia, of Providence, a converted fishing boat, sprang a bad leak while coming across the bad Wednesday afternoon and came into this harbor, with all hands bailing. She was taken into Frisbee's dock, where at low tide an effort will be made to locate and stop the leak. The Unia is cruising eastward, and has a crew of three.

Charles Bedell and Herbert Billings are loading several cars with box boards at the depot for Samuel Bowden of York, consigned to Danversport, Mass.

Oliver I. Frisbee and family of Portsmouth will arrive at their cottage, the Anchorage, Fishing Island, on Saturday for the season.

Mrs. William Dean Howells joined her husband at their cottage on Wednesday.

Schooner Alice M. Colburn is on the way here with coal from Newport News.

Prof. and Mrs. Roland Thaxter and little son Edmund and Miss Katherine Jennison returned today to their home in Cambridge, Mass., after passing a few days at the Thaxter cottage on Cutis island.

Mrs. George S. Wasson left today on a visit to relatives in Bangor.

Mrs. George E. Sides of Boston is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Keene.

Mrs. John E. Hannigan of Cambridge, Mass., arrived Wednesday to open the family cottage on Gerrish Island.

Miss Cora Blood returned Wednesday to Cambridge after being the guest of Mrs. S. Ellery Jennison.

E. M. Sadler of Wells Beach was a visitor in town on Wednesday.

S. Ellery Jennison returned Wednesday evening from a four days' business trip to Boston.

A large crowd from here attended the Junior exhibition in Traip Academy hall, Kittery, on Wednesday evening.

MUSIC HALL

New Act, Rose Shannon for Rest of This Week

Le Mira slack wire artist closed his engagement at Music Hall Wednesday evening. Rose Shannon a singing Comedienne is on the bill for the rest of the week. Robson and Wilson in their novelty musical act will remain for the rest of the week. This team has made a great hit and no one should miss seeing them.

Leona Balasco has two new songs the new kid song "Let's Go Back To The Baby Days" and "My Honey-moon."

The Pictures for today are Soldier's Honor, "An Old Sweetheart Of Mine," "Gamblers Honor," "Protector Of Animals," "Cigarette Making" and a new comedy feature film to be mentioned.

WILL BE OPENED SOON

Councilman John Newick of Ward Three, who is in charge of the new playgrounds at the Creek district, is causing a great hustle on the work there. He expects to have the same opened on July 5.

STOLEN YACHT

The police are on the lookout for a pleasure sloop yacht, which has been stolen from Portland, on Wednesday.

The battleship New Hampshire will not leave the navy yard until the last of the week.

Casey's Brilliant Idea.
 The women of the church in a suburb of Chicago were soliciting money to pay for decorating their house of worship. They decided to call on Casey, who kept the leading saloon in the village, and ask for a donation. They called. Casey met them graciously, listened to what they had to say and promptly subscribed $500.
 This was so much more than the solicitors had hoped for that they were much flustered and could do nothing but stammer their thanks. Finally one of them rounded to and said: "Why, Mr. Casey, this is most generous of you. It will allow us to get what we want very much, a fine stained glass window."
 "And, Mr. Casey," said the spokeswoman, "in view of this magnificent donation, isn't there some sentiment you would like to put on the window?"
 "Well," said Casey, "I think it would be well to have on the glass, because the two parts are in late letters, something like this: 'After Mass Visit Casey's.'" Today.
 We shall do so much in the years to come.
 But what have we done today?
 We shall give out gold in a princely sum. But what did we give today?
 We shall lift the heart and dry the tear. We shall plant a hope in the place of fear.
 We shall speak with words of love and cheer. But what have we done today?
 We shall be so kind in the after while. But what have we been today?
 We shall bring each lonely life a smile. But what have we brought today?
 We shall give to truth a grander birth. And to steadfast faith a deeper worth.
 We shall feed the hungry souls of earth. But whom have we fed today?

He Accepted the Donkey.
 When Barry Sullivan, the Irish tragedian, was playing Richard III. one night and the actor came to the lines "A horse, a horse! My kingdom for a horse!" some merry wag in the pit called out:
 "And wouldn't a jackass do as well for you?"
 "Sure," answered Sullivan, turning like a flash at the sound of the voice. "Come around to the stage door at once!"

A Dutiful Husband.
 A man who had overestimated his capacity for the amber fluid was arrested on the street for improper conduct. In the police court the next morning the usual charge of intoxication was filed against him, and he was fined $5, which he promptly paid. This done, he went out with a very worried expression on his countenance, only to return a few minutes later and cautiously approach the clerk.
 "Please, sir," he said, "would you just give me a receipt for that $5 I paid you? I want to show my wife that I didn't spend all my money for drink."—Success Magazine.

Didn't Like It Diluted.
 An old Mississippi pilot, speaking of intemperance, said:
 "Once I remember a passenger of ours left onboard. We fished him out with a boat hook after he had been soaking on the bottom half an hour or so. We laid him limp and soppy on the deck, and a steward ran for the whiskey bottle. As I pried the man's mouth open to pour some whiskey down his throat his lips moved. A kind of murmur came from them. I put my ear down close to listen, and I heard the half-drowned wretch say:
 "Roll me on a bar! I just to get some of this water out. I'll weaken the feller!"

A Characteristic Whistler Reply.
 Whistler's mother cherished a wish that he should become a soldier, as so many MacNeills and Whistlers had been before him. Consequently Whistler entered the military academy at West Point as a cadet. But he showed little aptitude for studies beyond drawing. A good story is told in the Pennells' life of the eccentric artist of an examination in history:
 "What?" said his examiner. "You do not know the date of the battle of Bunker Vista? Suppose you were to go out to dinner and the company began to talk of the Mexican war and you, a West Point man, were asked the date of the battle. What would you do?" "Do?" said Whistler. "Why, I should refuse to associate with people who could talk of such things at dinner!"

Beecher and Barnum.
 Henry Ward Beecher was a great admirer of P. T. Barnum and always took a front seat when he attended Barnum's circus. Then it happened one day that Mr. Beecher saw Mr. Barnum enter his church and take a back seat. Immediately Mr. Beecher sought him out. "You must come right up here in front, Mr. Barnum. I always take a front seat when I come to your circus, and I want you to do the same when you come to mine."

No Peace There.
 To have to eat a Christmas dinner at a hotel is bad enough, no matter how numerous the courses and how choice the viands. To have to eat it alone is worse. One man who sat at a table solitary glanced over the menu with little interest. It was a big card, resplendent with pictures of polonaises, and at the top was the motto:
 "Peace on earth, good will to men."
 In an effort to forget his depression he said to the waiter, pointing at the Biblical quotation:
 "Please bring me some of that first. I've never eaten peas that way. May be I won't like them."
 The waiter was an Irish American. With a smile that began and ended in his eyes he said slyly:
 "I'm sorry, sir, but that's a mistake. There isn't any peace in the kitchen. We've got an Irish and a Dutch cook down there."

Inspiration of Action.
 I love the souls that rush along to their goal with a full stream of sentiment, that have too much of the positive to be harassed by the perpetual negatives, which, after all, are but the disease of the soul, to be expelled by fortifying the principle of vitality—George Eliot.

Had His Revenge.
 Pat had had trouble with his eyes and went to see a distinguished specialist for relief. On his arrival at the doctor's office he found the usual large number of patients in the ante-room awaiting attention, and, though he was in a great hurry, he was forced to wait several dreary hours before his turn came. He lost and regained his temper several times in the interval, but when all was over and he found himself out upon the street with the day half spent indignation over the loss of valuable time was the predominant note in his feelings.

 "But O! had me revenge," he ejaculated, with a broad smile, as he told his friend Mike about it afterward.
 "O! don't think he'll keep me waiting again like that?"
 "That did you do to 'um?" asked Mike.
 "Sure an' O! what back th' next day," said Pat. "O! got there at twelve by the clock, an' I very teime they said 'twas me turn to go in O! said O! wait an' let some other fella have me place until the clock struck twelve, an' O! what in. 'Well,' says he, 'pshaw can O! do for yes this mornin', Pat?' 'Nawthin', says O!, lookin' him square in the eye as O! turned on me heels and lift the room. Bedad, O! don't believe he knows yit what struck 'um!'—Harper's Weekly.

Well Posted.
 A Sermon That Won't Preacher a Warm Recommendation.
 Dublin produces a type of old woman as peculiar to the city as its jaunting cars.
 "Och, Biddy," says one pronounced specimen to another as they met in O'Connell street on a Monday morning. "were you not down at Arram quay chapel last night to hear the sermon?"
 "No, jewel, I was not there. What was the sermon about?"
 "Ah, the finest sermon on hell you ever heard from a young priest called Father Clancy, the darlinest young man you ever set eyes on, and him just ordained the other day!"
 "Arrah, go on, woman! What would a young man like that know about hell?"
 "Know about hell, is it? He knows more about hell than all the priests in Dublin. I declare, if you were listenin' to him, you would think he was born and reared in it!"

Between Twenty and Thirty.
 A woman's age is usually the one thing that she can keep secret—provided it is her own age—but the other day in the court a woman was forced to disclose the great secret.
 "Madam, what is your age?" asked counsel.
 "I am past twenty," she replied.
 "You must be more explicit."
 "Well, my age is between twenty and thirty."

Getting Into Practice.
 A young law student, the son of a poor man who had stilled himself to educate the boy, was making a study of certain processes of his future profession. He showed an inclination to sit in the house and speculate idly, instead of doing some of the domestic tasks which stood waiting.
 "Deduction is an interesting process," declared the youth to his father. "For example, there is a heap of ashes in the yard. That is evidence that the family has recently had fires."
 "Well, John," interposed his father, "suppose you pursue your studies a little further by going out and sifting that evidence."

Crushed.
 One night a loud person who sat at a dinner with a well known bishop kept making stupid jokes and at each one laughed uproariously. Entirely unacquainted with the churchman, he finally said: "I have three sons—one dead, all in business. I always said I had a stupid son to make a parson out of him."
 When he had finished his discordant laugh the bishop said, with a quiet smile, "Your father thought differently from you."

Worldly Wisdom.
 As there is a worldly happiness which God perceives to be no more than disguised misery, as there are worldly honors which in his estimation are reproach, so there is a worldly wisdom which in his sight is foolishness. Of this worldly wisdom the characters are given in the Scriptures and placed in contrast with those of the wisdom which is from above. The one is the wisdom of the earth, the other that of the upright; the one terminates in selfishness, the other in charity; the one is full of strife and bitter enmities, the other of mercy and of good fruits.—Blair.

Helpful Johnny.
 Johnny loved his papa, there was no doubt about that, and one morning after he had listened to a long disquisition from the author of his being addressed to his elders on the general uselessness of the verniform appendix, ending up with the broad statement that he hoped he'd see the day when every appendix in creation was cut out, the little boy resolved upon an agreeable surprise for his daddy. He worked in secret for several days and then sprang it.
 "See what I have done for you, daddy," he said, lending the wonderful thing a neat pile of many pages which he had accumulated. "I've cut the appendix out of every book in this library."

A Thrifty Wife.
 A Canadian minister had just married a couple. The registers were signed, and nothing remained but the giving and taking of the fee. The bridegroom, a strapping young fellow, asked, "How much is it?"
 The parson glanced at the smiling bride and slyly answered, "Whatever you think it's worth."
 Now, it should have been worth a good deal, for the girl was young and pretty. "I reckon it's worth about 50 cents," said the swain, holding out two quarters.
 The clergyman looked blankly at the coins, then turned to the fair one. "I'll leave it to you, madam," he said. "What do you think it's worth?"
 What did this young and blushing bride do? She reached out, took the coins, handed one quarter to the minister and put the other into her pocket.
 "A thrifty wife," said the Canadian with a sigh, "is her husband's crown."

Two of a Kind.
 A distinguished specialist in Washington was called upon a week or two ago by an eminent government official for treatment for a nervous ailment.
 "The first thing you must do," said the physician after an examination "is to give up both smoking and drinking."
 Whereupon the eminent official became real peevish. "Look here, doctor," he burst out, "now you're talking just like my wife!"

Staying Off a Vote.
 A Candid Explanation by the Speaker of the House.
 On one occasion in the house of representatives an unusually large number of Republicans happened to get hungry about the same time, while for some unknown reason the Democratic appetite did not require attention. Catching Speaker Cannon napping, the Democratic floor leader, perceiving that he had a majority, called up a bill and pushed it to a vote. The speaker, strung out the voting in all of the various ways known to him, but at the end of the second roll call the Democratic votes were still in the majority. Though the rules of the house expressly forbade such a thing, a third roll call was ordered by the speaker, a proceeding which called out a redoubtable protest from one of the Democratic leaders, who demanded to know the reason for the speaker's extraordinary action. The speaker graciously advised the protesting Democrat.
 "The chair will inform the gentleman," said he. "The chair is hoping that a few more Republicans will come in."

Didn't Court Publicity.
 "One of the funniest incidents in court I have ever witnessed," says a Kansas City lawyer in Harper's Weekly, "occurred in a petty court of our city. An old offender had been jailed before the magistrate. After a conference with the clerk of the court his honor began sternly to address the culprit as follows:
 "I gather that you have already been sentenced ten times for violent assault, disorderly conduct, attempted—"
 "Whereupon, to the amazement of all in court, the prisoner hastily interposed with:
 "I beg your honor's pardon, but would you mind not speaking so loud? My intended mother-in-law is in court, and it might damage my prospects."

Falso Colors.
 Sir Augustus Harris one week end took a cab in London for Charing Cross. He had painted in black letters on box and kit bag, "Augustus Harris, T. R. D. L." They stood, of course, for "Theater Royal, Drury Lane." But the cabbie thought that they stood for some learned degree; that there was an innocent, helpless scientist whom he could easily bilk out of an exorbitant fare. So on reaching Charing Cross the cabbie frowned down at Sir Augustus and said darkly:
 "A good 5 shillins' worth, sir."
 But Sir Augustus laughed and banded the man one and six, the exact fare plus a tuppenny tip.
 The cabbie looked at the money and sneered bitterly.
 "Garn!" he said. "An' ye call yourself a T. R. D. L. Why, ye ain't no more a T. R. D. L. than mud wot I am!"

When Mind Acts on Mind.
 The most potent influence that ever can rest upon the mind is that of another mind acting upon it. This is the highest influence of which we know anything at present. There is nothing, for example, that has power on you thought like a thinker thinking on you, as it were, or thinking to you. Nothing so arouses the affection as a great heart near yours. Like a fire, it sends out its warmth to all that are near it, whether they want it or not.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Rather Unusual.
 During a trip of an English vessel one of the crew died of fever. Next day the crew was ordered off to the quarter deck to attend the burial service. There being many sharks about, the captain ordered one of the firemen to attach two bags of coal to the corpse to make sure that it would sink. This was done, the burial service was read, and the remains of the unfortunate man had just been consigned to the waters when one of the sailors, Pat Cassidy by name, burst into laughter. In anger the captain turned and asked the reason for this untimely demonstration.
 "Well," replied Cassidy, wiping his eyes, "I've seen many a man going below, but that's the first time I've seen one takin' his own coals with him!"

The Saint He Picked.
 A famous lawyer in Brittany once appealed to the pope for a saint. His holiness proposed that he should be round a certain church blindfolded and lay hold of the saint nearest his hand. He stopped and grasped a certain image, crying: "This be our saint! This be our patron!"
 When the bandage was removed, he found that, though he had stooped before the altar of St. Michael, to his horror he had laid hold not of St. Michael, but of the figure under St. Michael's feet—the devil!

No Place Like Home.
 The usual after dinner tiff had taken place and Smithers had cooled down. After all, peace was a good thing and well worth the bawling, and a little more or less humble pie did not much matter. He determined to try woman's weak point—dress—and remarked in a pleasant voice:
 "I sea dressers are to be worn longer than usual this season."
 But the hard lines at the corners of her mouth were still there.
 "Well," she observed bitterly, "if they are to be worn longer than I am compelled to wear mine they will have to be made of sheet iron, that's all!"
 And then they started all over again.

LAKE MANGISHLAK.
 Its Strongly Perfumed Waters Are Mauve in Color.
 "Grasse, clinging to its Alp, high above the Mediterranean, is supposed to give the stranger a headache on account of its perfume," said a perfumer. "Grasse makes the world's perfumes. You see mountains of flowers there, as in a milling country you see mountains of wheat. The odor is powerful, but as far as headaches—no."
 "But in the Caspian district there is a lake so strongly perfumed that if the stranger boats on it or swims in it he really gets a headache. This lake's banks are of white salt crystals, its waters are mauve in color, and from it an odor of violets is exhaled."
 "It is Lake Mangishlak. I visited it to see if I couldn't bottle it up and put it on the perfume market. No go."
 "You see, it is the presence of the seaweed Polydystia violacea that gives the lake its hue and smell. When you bottle the waters the seaweed at once after a few days die and rot. Then the odor changes from violet to—pab!"
 "But if you are ever in the Caspian visit the Mangishlak peninsula and take a look at the lake. It is in its way as curious as the asphalt lakes of South America."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SHE WAS INSULTED.
 The Sting in the Letter That Came For Her Husband.
 "Harry, love," said Mrs. Knew to her husband when he entered his home a few evenings ago, "I've been dreadfully insulted."
 "Insulted?" repeated Mr. Knew indignantly. "By whom?"
 "By your mother."
 "My mother, Flora? Nonsense, dear. She's the kindest woman in the world. And how could she insult you? She isn't here; she's miles away!"
 "But, Harry, she did insult me," persisted Flora, "and it was done in a letter."
 "Show it to me."
 "I'll tell you about it. A letter came for you this morning addressed in your mother's handwriting, and so, of course, I opened it."
 "Of course," said Mr. Knew dryly. "It was written to you all the way through, you understand?"
 "Yes, I understand that, but where does the insult to you come in?"
 "In the postscript. When I read along to that it said, 'Dear Flora: Don't fail to give this letter to Harry; I want him to have it.' Now, tell me, wasn't that an insult?"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Unprejudiced Son.
 The president of a club of New York waiters said the other day of a parsimonious young man:
 "He resembles a chap they tell about in Bucks county.
 "This chap lived alone with his father. On the old man's death he would inherit the farm.
 "Well, finally the old man took sick and drew near. The son sat up with him a night or two, expecting him to pass away, but he lingered on.
 "On the fifth or sixth night the son, instead of sitting up, put a lamp, turned low, very, very low, on a table by the bed and left it on his own room with the door closed."
 "When you found it it all over with you, father, don't forget to blow out the lamp?"—Washington Star.

A Rare Souvenir.
 A curious souvenir is preserved in the Bank of England in the shape of a box for £1,000 with which Admiral Lord Cochrane paid his fine when he was falsely accused of spreading with an interested object a rumor that Bonaparte was dead in 1814 so as to cause a rise in the price of stocks. The sum mentioned was raised in subscriptions of a penny by his Westminster constituents. The note is indorsed with the name of the intrepid but ill-used sailor and has inscribed on it a sentence in which he expresses the hope that one day he will prove his innocence and triumph over his accusers. That consummation was not effected until eighteen years later, when he was reinstated by William IV.—London Telegraph.

Submarine Navigation.
 The idea of the submarine is certainly as much as 200 years old, but most of the earlier plans were flat failures. In 1775 an inventor named Day lost his life during an experimental descent in Plymouth sound. Busbush of Connecticut in 1775 contrived a submarine vessel propelled by some kind of steam. Robert Fulton also in 1790 invented a box which when filled with gunpowder might be propelled under water and made to explode under the bottom of a ship. It is hard to say who was the originator of the idea of the submarine boat unless it was Day.—New York American.

A Hard Case.
 "His wife earns her own money."
 "Indeed? I did not know she was employed."
 "Oh, yes; hard at it all the time."
 "What does she do?"
 "Works him to give up."—New York Journal.

Why He Fretted.
 "Amateur Sportsman (after shooting his best friend)—Too bad, too bad! I thought you were a deer. The Vicar—Don't fret. Amateur Sportsman—Don't fret! Why, man, I promised my wife a pair of horns."—Illustrated Bazaar.

What's the Use?
 "Ought we not to do something more for the preservation of our forests?"
 "Oh, what's the use?" answered Senator Sorghum impatiently. "Trees can't vote."—Washington Star.

THE CIRCUS

Robbins' Show is in Town And the Crowds Are Here to See It

The Frank A. Robbins circus arrived in town at an early hour this morning and proceeded at once to the city farm grounds, where shows are given this afternoon and evening.
The tents were hustled into position with a dispatch that proved that the concern has skilled employees, and soon everything was in readiness for the parade, which passed through the principal streets.
The Robbins show gave exhibitions at Newburyport yesterday and nothing but favorable criticism has reached this office, the large crowd of spectators being greatly pleased. All Newburyport papers speak highly of this show, and all along the line they have been praised in the papers.
The great feature of the show is the ring performance, and the owners have spared no expense in getting the best there is in the market. The programme includes the following:
Gregory family, six acrobats, who do all sorts of wonderful stunts requiring strength and agility.
The Aerial Lloyds, five performers who do trapeze work of a high order of excellence.
Miacio Sisters, contortionists, whose suppleness excites wonder and admiration.
Hocum family, skilled bareback riders.
The Moores and Ray Dee, tight wire walkers.
Rose Edyth's ballet troupe of dancers.
Morey Bros., in a posturing act.
LaBelle Clark and her famous dancing horse, Grand Duke, in itself worth the price of admission.
A thrilling feature of the show is the "Leap to the Moon," by Dare Deyll Herr, a bicycle and trapeze act that requires nerve and ability of high order.
Then there is the usual collection of clowns and other acts usually found in circuses, and the combination is certain to please.
Of course the crowds are here.
Robbins' circus has been visiting New England every other year for twenty-nine years and has visited Portsmouth in nearly every one of these trips. Its good reputation secured in past years is likely to be maintained this year.
And of course everybody must go and see the elephant and the wild beasts.
But the ring show is the great feature.

THE NAVY YARDS HERE AND AWAY

The New Pilot

The work of Captain Evans, who handled the Maine on Thursday was a feature in navigation seldom seen in the handling of big ships in the river.
This vessel, drawing 29 feet of water was taken from her berth hugging close to Pumpkin island, a part of the river that certainly requires nothing but skill to move ships as large as the Maine. The big fighter was handled like a canoe and moved from her dock to the Atlantic as easy as a gunboat.

Eagle on Her Way

The gun boat Eagle has sailed from Annapolis for this yard where she will receive the usual overhauling and tie up for the summer and fall.

Capt. Winslow in Hospital

A dispatch from Newport today states that Capt. Cameron McR Winslow, U. S. N., commanding officer of the battleship New Hampshire is a patient at the Newport hospital, where he was operated upon this morning by Dr. Charles W. Stewart.

The operation was successful, and it is believed that the patient will soon recover.
The officers at this station where his ship is at present, as well as the many acquaintances of the genial captain in this city, hope for his full and speedy recovery.

Not Going Just Yet

It is now given out that the U. S. S. New Hampshire will not sail for a week or so.

A Good Appointment

Andrew J. McMullen for the past four years clerk in the yard pay office, has been appointed a paymaster's clerk in the navy and will probably within a short time be assigned to duty with Paymaster John N. Jordan on the U. S. S. Celtic. The appointment meets with a general approval among Mr. McMullen's associates at the naval station and friends in this city who are decidedly pleased to learn of his advance and congratulate him on his move up higher which was well deserved. He is certainly sure to do credit to the position.

Asked to Estimate

The manufacturing department have been requested to furnish estimates on the construction of two oil barges for general use. It is hoped that this station will be successful in securing the building of these crafts.

He Passed the Cigars

A. W. Baker, draftsman in steam engineering division of the manufacturing department, who recently took to himself a bride, returned to work today and met with a warm welcome on part of the drafting force in his room. The occasion was the cause of some excellent smokers being passed up and the smoke from the seven twenty-four was flying thick after the noon day meal.
